Can you say [REDACTED] instead of [REDACTED]? I heard it somewhere, but I can't remember where. A: Yes, you can, although both of your sentences do not make sense. A noun + [REDACTED] is usually translated as "because of" or "due to". I have a feeling you are thinking of [REDACTED]. The [REDACTED]/[REDACTED] construction is for "there is" or "there are". Thus, [REDACTED]/[REDACTED] or [REDACTED]/[REDACTED]. For a more detailed explanation, you can read this article. Ion transfer in capacitive deionization. A theoretical and numerical study of ion transfer in a capacitive deionization (CDI) system is presented. An analytical model, based on the Poisson-Boltzmann theory of fluid conductivity and a second-order diffusion equation, is proposed to describe the ion migration. Two configurations of electrodes are investigated, a planar electrode configuration and a cylinder- 4bcMebe42
